Chuck Stone Program
for Diversity in Education and Media

“This week has truly been an amazing experience, and the memories I have gained I will cherish forever.”

-2013 Chuck Stone Scholar

The Chuck Stone Program for Diversity in Education and Media, sponsored by the UNC-Chapel Hill School of Media and Journalism is seeking applications from high school students who will be seniors in the 2016-2017 school year and who have expressed a career interest in journalism. The program aims to attract students of varying diversity, including but not limited to religion, ethnicity, socioeconomic status and gender.

The 2016 Chuck Stone Workshop will include classroom study, real-world reporting, newsroom practice and professional mentors. The workshop will consist of 50 hours of multi-platform storytelling and writing. A committee of journalism professors and professionals will select 12 participants. Paid expenses will include airfare, meals and lodging.*
