The Carolina Photojournalism Workshop (CPJW) is an intensive, on-location multimedia project in which students complete a project in one week with professional coaching. Students will produce a cutting-edge website documenting life in and around Roanoke Rapids/Lake Gaston, N.C. Past projects have won Webbys, CPoY, SXSW, Horizon and more. This is one of the most intense, valuable learning experiences in the Viscom program. We welcome applications from all Viscom sequences. Expect to create an exceptional portfolio piece. Admission to this 12-day, 3-credit course is by permission of instructor. To apply, submit an online application to Pat Davison by February 16, 5p.m.

- CPJW is a JOMC 584 summer course. It fulfills requirements for Viscom students and can be taken in place of JOMC582 for Photojournalism majors. Students pay tuition as for any 3-credit class and will register during normal summer school registration once accepted by Professor Davison.
- Each student will be paired with a professional coach and receive daily editing and teaching. Students should have had at least a basic Viscom course (180,187, 182).
- An online application form, portfolio url and resume are due to Prof Davison by February 16.
- There is a small additional charge, usually $150-$200, to help cover lodging and coaches' expenses. Students are responsible for transportation and meals. Lodging is partially subsidized by a grant from UNC's institute for the Environment and JOMC.
- CPJW will be held in Carroll Hall and Roanoke Rapids/Lake Gaston, NC, 5/8-20. There is a 2-day video crash course in Carroll Hall May 8-9. Students are free on May 10 for graduation and Mothers Day.
- Students will return to Carroll Hall 5/18 - 20 to upload content to the website and turn in final deliverables.
